

The fine for standard traffic infractions in Washington will go up to $124 on July 22, 2007. Here's where the ticket fines will go:

$44.43

Who gets it: City or county

How it's spent: Generally for court operations, police or prosecutors

$0.79

Who gets it: City or county

How it's spent: To help crime victims

$44.78

Who gets it: State Public Safety and Education Account

How it's spent: Traffic safety programs such as Click It or Ticket seat belt enforcement campaign

$17.00

Who gets it: Judicial Information System

How it's spent: Computer system that allows every court in the state to access records

$5.00

Who gets it: Emergency Medical Services and Trauma Care

How it's spent: Payments to hospitals that treat people without insurance

$10.00

Who gets it: Auto Theft Prevention Account

How it's spent: To investigate and prosecute car theft cases.

$2.00

Who gets it: Traumatic Brain Injury Account

How it's spent: To create a support network and public awareness campaign for victims of brain injury.

TOTAL: $124.00

Source: Washington Administrative Office of the Courts